I sure as hell don't want a one size fits all one company owns all system. It is absolutely necessary to limit these greedy beasts. Look at the damage they have done already, do you listen to the radio? We don't need just a few companies to own everything and circulate one playlist of MacMusic day in and day out across the entire continent. Diversity is a good thing.